to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure granting summary judgment for the defendants and for such other and further relief as this Court may deem just and proper.

DEFENDANTS' RULE 9(g) STATEMENT

Defendants by their attorney, Paul J. Curran, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, submit this statement of facts pursuant to Rule 9(g) of the General Rules of the Southern District of New York, and contend that as to the following material facts there is no genuine issue to be tried.

1. Plaintiff, Marcelina Diaz Rivera de Gomez (hereinafter "Mrs. Gomez") is a fifty-one year old United States citizen, who was born in Puerto Rico on August 24, 1924. On July 26, 1972 plaintiff travelled to Santo Domingo in the Dominican Republic for a two week vacation trip. Plaintiff states that shortly after her arrival in Santo Domingo, on July 30, 1972, she was introduced to Cecilio Trifilio Gomez-Tejada (hereinafter "Gomez-Tejada"), a then twenty-five year old native and citizen of the Dominican Republic. The next day, despite a twenty-one years age difference, plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada were married. On August 10, 1972 plaintiff returned to the United States.

2. Gomez-Tejada had previously been married to one Juana Francisca Fernandez, also a native and citizen of the Dominican Republic, by whom had had two children, Maria Francisca and Bernard Rovin, born January 3, 1968 and February 11, 1971, respectively. He divorced Juana Fernandez prior to marrying plaintiff. A few weeks after such marriage, and on the basis of it, Mrs. Gomez filed a petition with the New York District of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (the "Service") on September 18, 1972, to accord Gomez-Tejada the status of an immediate relative pursuant to Section 201(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the "Act"), 8 U.S.C. §1151(b).

3. The Service approved her petition on January 31, 1973 and forwarded the approved petition to the American Consulate in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Thereafter, Gomez-Tejada submitted a formal application for an immigrant visa.

4. Based on facts uncovered during an investigation conducted in the Dominican Republic to determine Gomez-Tejada's eligibility for an immigrant visa, the Consul had reason to believe that the marriage between plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada was a marriage of convenience entered into solely for the purpose of circumventing the immigration laws. Consequently, pursuant to the authority contained in 22 C.F.R. 42.43(a), the Consul returned the approved visa petition to the Service in New York on June 11, 1974 for a determination as to whether the approval of the visa petition should be revoked pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 205.2.

5. An investigation was then undertaken by the Service in New York in view of the facts uncovered by the consulate in the Dominican Republic. Mrs. Gomez was invited to appear for an interview regarding her marital status and was confronted with the results of the investigation conducted by the consul. She appeared on July 24, 1974 but declined, on advice of counsel, to make any statement other than to advise the Service of her new address and telephone number. Subsequently, on January 3, 1975 the plaintiff was served with a notice of intent to revoke the Service's approval of the petition (Exhibit A attached hereto). The notice detailed the grounds for the revocation action and granted Mrs. Gomez a period of fifteen days within which to offer evidence in oppositions to the revocation action. On January 10, 1975 Mrs. Gomez submitted a statement of Gomez-Tejada in which he alleged that the affidavit of Juana Fernandez was obtained under duress (Exhibit B attached hereto). On February 26, 1975 the Service revoked its approval of the visa petition filed by Mrs. Gomez on behalf of Gomez-Tejada (Exhibit C attached hereto).

6. Plaintiff appealed the decision of the Service to revoke the approval of the visa petition to the Board of Immigration Appeals. By decision and order dated July 8, 1975 the Board dismissed the appeal and found that the marriage between plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada was entered into solely to obtain immigration benefits and was not bona fide within the contemplation of the immigration laws (Exhibit D attached hereto).

7. On May 10, 1974 Mrs. Gomez, by her attorney, commenced this action to compel the consul to issue a visa to her husband. The complaint alleges (1) that plaintiff is seeking a declaratory judgment that she is lawfully married to Gomez-Tejada and (2) in the alternative, that the action is one in the nature of mandamus to compel to consul to issue a visa to plaintiff's husband.

the defendants now move for summary judgment.

Affidavits in Support of Motion for Summary Judgment

MARY P. MAGUIRE, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

1. I am a Special Assistant United States
Attorney in the office of Paul J. Curran, United States Attorney for the Southern District of New York, attorney for the defendants, and as such I am in charge of and familiar with this action. This affidavit is based in part on information contained in the official records of the United States of America, i.e., official records of the Department of State and of the Immigration and Naturalization Service. I submit this affidavit in support of the defendants' motion for an order pursuant to Rule 56 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure granting summary judgment to the defendants.

2. Plaintiff, Marcelina Diaz Rivera de Gomez (hereinafter "Mrs. Gomez") is a fifty-one year old United States citizen, who was born in Puerto Rico on August 24, 1924. On July 26, 1972 plaintiff travelled to Santo

Domingo in the Dominican Republic for two-week vacation trip. Plaintiff states that shortly after her arrival in Santo Domingo, on July 30, 1972, she was introduced to Cecilio Trifilio Gomez-Tejada (hereinafter "Gomez-Tejada"), a then twenty-five year old native and citizen of the Dominican Republic. The next day, despite a twenty-one years age difference, plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada were married. On August 10, 1972 plaintiff returned to the United States.

3. Gomez-Tejada had previously been married to one Juana Francisca Fernandez, also a native and citizen of the Dominican Republic, by whom he had two children, Maria Francisca and Bernard Rovin, born January 3, 1968 and February 11, 1971, respectively. He divorced Juana Fernandez prior to marrying plaintiff. A few weeks after such marriage, and on the basis of it, Mrs. Gomez filed a petition with the New York District of the Immigration and Naturalization Service (the "Service") on September 18, 1972, to accord Gomez-Tejada the status of an immediate relative pursuant to Section 201(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the "Act"), 8 U.S.C. §1151(b).

4. The Service approved her petition on January 31, 1973 and forwarded the approved petition to the American Consulate in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic. Thereafter, Gomez-Tejada submitted a formal application for an immigrant visa.

5. Following the filing of his visa application consular officials in Santo Domingo made repeated attempts to contact Gomez-Tejada. However, it was discovered that he did not reside at the address given on the visa application. It was subsequently learned, on June 8, 1974, that not only was Gomez-Tejada continuing to reside with his ex-wife, Juana Fernandez, and their children, but that he had had a third child by her. The child was born on September 2, 1973, more than a year after his ceremonial marriage to plaintiff. Juana Francisca Fernandez executed a sworn statement attesting to these facts and the town mayor also confirmed these facts.

6. Based on these facts, the Consul had reason to believe that the marriage between plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada was a marriage of convenience entered into solely for the purpose of circumventing the immigration laws. Section 212(a)(19) of the Immigration and Nationality Act,

8 U.S.C. §1182(a)(19) and 22 C.F.R. 42.91(19) provides that an alien who seeks to procure a visa or other documentation for entry into the United States by fraud or by wilfully misrepresenting a material fact shall be ineligible to receive a visa.

7. 22 C.F.R. 42.43(a) specifically authorizes a consular officer who knows or has reason to believe that the approval of the visa petition by the Service was obtained by fraud or misrepresentation or that the beneficiary is not entitled, for any other reason, to the status approved, to return the case to the Service for reconsideration. Accordingly, on June 11, 1974 the visa petition was returned to the Service in New York for a determination as to whether the previously approved visa petition should be revoked pursuant to C.F.R. 205.2.

8. An investigation was then undertaken by the Service in New York in view of the facts uncovered by the Consulate in the Dominican Republic. Mrs. Gomez was invited to appear for an interview regarding her marital status. She appeared on July 24, 1974 and was confronted with the results of the investigation conducted by the consul, but declined, on advice of counsel, to make any statement other than to advise the Service of her new address and telephone number. Subsequently, on January 3, 1975 the plaintiff was served with a notice of intent to revoke the Service's approval of the petition (Exhibit A attached hereto). The notice detailed the grounds for the revocation action and granted Mrs. Gomez a period of fifteen days within which to offer evidence in opposition to the revocation action. On January 10, 1975 Mrs. Gomez submitted a statement of Gomez-Tejada in which he alleged that the affidavit of Juana Fernandez was obtained under duress (Exhibit B attached hereto). On February 26, 1975 the Service revoked its approval of the visa petition filed by Mrs. Gomez on behalf of Gomez-Tejada (Exhibit C attached hereto).

9. Plaintiff appealed the decision of the Service to revoke the approval of the visa petition to the Board of Immigration Appeals. By decision and order dated July 8, 1975 the Board dismissed the appeal and found that the marriage between plaintiff and Gomez-Tejada was entered into solely to obtain immigration benefits and was not bona fide within the contemplation of the immigration laws (Exhibit D attached hereto).

10. On May 10, 1974 Mrs. Gomez, by her attorney, commenced this action to compel the consul to issue a visa to her husband. The complaint alleges, inter alia, (1) that plaintiff is seeking a declaratory judgment that she is lawfully married to Gomez-Tejada and (2) in the alternative, that the action is one in the nature of mandamus to compel the consul to issue a visa to plaintiff's husband.

11. The defendants now move for summary judgment on the complaint in that plaintiff has failed to state a cause of action upon which relief can be granted and for lack of jurisdiction. In this respect the defendants respectfully submit: (a) that the decision of the Consul to issue or deny a visa to plaintiff's spouse is not subject to judicial review; (b) plaintiff lacks standing to sue; and (c) mandamus does not lie against a consul with respect to visa issuance.

WHEREFORE, it is prayed that summary judgment be granted to the defendants and the underlying complaint be dismissed.

Plaintiff's Rule 9(q) Counter-Statement

1. The revocation action with respect to the approved petition was arbitrary, capricious and violative of the most elementary rules of due process of law. Plaintiff was called upon to rebut in New York statements allegedly obtained by Consular investigators in Santo Domingo, Dominican Republic.

No opportunity was afforded plaintiff to examine the witnesses who allegedly gave their statements to Consular investigators.

2. The procedures used by the American Consul at Santo Domingo and those employed by the Immigration and Naturalization Service at New York in this case did not provide for an evidentiary hearing in this controversy as to whether or not plaintiff's marriage to Gomez-Tejada had been entered into solely to obtain immigration benefits.

The defendants have resisted discovery which alone would have enabled plaintiff, through her attorney, to examine the witnesses against her husband.

3. This case is not ripe for summary judgment because of the many unresolved issues of material fact.
